NOTES
This is not going to be a traditional shoot day. It would be far busier and the entire crew would be present if it would be. This is to do some little odds and ends that need to be done as add ins to episodes, etc. I see this as the perfect opportunity to train the new people who joined the team and to cross train the existing staff in new positions to help diversify without overwhelming everyone. We will take our time to make sure everyone knows what they need to do properly and to make sure they are comfortable with their jobs. While I did put makeup and set call times, they may fluctuate depending on how long it takes to train and prep everyone. I can't really judge how long the day will take due to training, and the randomness of the scenes we will be doing. It will require multiple setups, and some rehearsals. Drinks (coffee, tea, hot chocolate, pop, water, etc. will be provided as usual). We will have snacks on hand. Feel free to pitch in with a bag of chips or something if you can. Thanks in advance! This will be a transitional day into heavy filming for the next shoot. Remember to have fun! See you there!
